Pages Saturday, October 18, 2013 Vegan Chocolate Chip Cookies These Vegan Chocolate Chip Cookies are rich and cakey, the perfect treat to get a batch of cookie dough into the oven for a few minutes of homemaking. And they're so easy to make! The other day I was getting my hair done by my favorite stylist in town. I get my hair done every month or so and the other day it was just getting out of vacation mode. So the stylist (and I thank her for my recent hair color) recommended I try out a Vitamin Water diet. She said it was good for keeping your energy up and it would help me feel fuller, without leaving me bloated or any kind of pregnant. "Besides," she said, "I think you need to lose some weight." Ooooh, I thought! But her idea of dieting sounded like it included not eating vegetables. I had just had a fun party that was all about eating lots and lots of foods from around the world, like Indian (paneer, and hot and spicy things), Mexican (beans and lots of tacos), and Korean (moo gook, and spicy kimchi). All great foods! But I would have to skip a few of them, I thought. That's how you get into a big quandary. Vegan desserts, like this one, are really hard to make, I think. Plus I had made some eggplant lasagna and ice cream using raw egg and eggplant. So I felt I was over my quota of vegan food. However, I love food. I love all kinds of food. And I want to be healthy. So I agreed to try the Vitamin Water diet, with the stipulation that I could eat whatever I wanted. Chocolate chip cookies are more carb-heavy than most other dessert options, so I knew I had to skip those. It was the perfect compromise. I will admit, though, that my first reaction was "huh. Only eight cookie dough bites?" But then I went to my local Whole Foods and I found soy yogurt, so my first thought was, "must have that! That will help me keep up my carbs!" But there was no soy yogurt on the shelves. Huh. So I looked at the whole foods store online, and lo and behold, I found soy yogurt there, so I loaded it up. So here's my recipe for these cookies: Ve

Q: How to read Azure table storage output stream in rx? To write out to a table storage output stream, the method signature is: public async Task WriteAsync(AzureTableQuery query, TableQueryOptions options, TableStorageWriter writer, CancellationToken cancellationToken) how can I read from the output stream? A: For most Azure Functions, the Output Type is just a string. This would be the script (just one line): task.Wait(); If you need to know more about the Output Stream, you can look into this article. Q: Problematic Cascading Drop Down List Hiding and Filtering I am trying to create a cascading drop down list using JSOM. I have succesfully created two cascading drop down lists from two different SharePoint list and populated the data. But when I click the select button from the second drop down, the first drop down is still appearing. Please refer the screenshot below. I want the application to behave like this: Click "Select" from the second drop down, then it should only display values from the first drop down list. And when I click "Select" for the first drop down, it should go to the second drop down and populate the second drop down with values from the first drop down list. A: You can create this using jQuery: var selectBoxes = document.querySelectorAll('#first_selectbox, #second_selectbox'); var $selectBoxes = Array.prototype.slice.call(selectBoxes); $selectBoxes.forEach(function(selectBox) { selectBox.addEventListener('change', function() { var item = this.options[this.selectedIndex].value; if(this.value!==""){ if(selectBox.value===""){ selectBox.value = item; }else {
