Our New Year's resolution to those near and far: We'd like to see Facebook reach out a hand and welcome the competition. Of course, we understand that Facebook has been dominating the social media world since its founding in 2004. We've loved the free Facebook gift certificate that Mark Zuckerberg has given us over the years, and can appreciate that some of the very things that make Facebook so great -- easy sharing and connections with your friends -- have changed the way we interact in the real world. But what if we could go beyond that? What if we could see beyond Facebook's endless content and embrace the platform as a great way to connect with friends and family? That's where the idea of a social network for Facebook users really comes into play. An upstart called Friendfeed may have found a way to do it. That's right, Friendfeed wants to be Facebook. But it's not like Facebook. Instead of providing a stream of content like a website or app, Friendfeed provides a stream of content like Facebook. It's a hub where you can communicate with friends and followers, bookmark pages you like, and even find out what your friends are doing in real-time. Since Friendfeed's announcement in November, it's already grown to more than 400,000 users and tripled its staff to 30. Co-founder Ryan Schultz said that it's gained about 20,000 new users each day this week. Friendfeed allows you to set up streams of information for your friends, events, and other interest areas. Description: jh_herbs 02-28 08:12 PM Hi, i'm in similar situation. I have an H1B, received a new job offer, new contract with a higher pay, new position, new facilities etc., but before going, i want to be able to use my present H1B status. How would this be possible? i dont want to change employers, rather i want to leave, just take the new job, go to new place. Can I let the H1B status expire, continue as i am presently (work on H1B visa) and on my way to new job (so, for 6 months), return to USCIS and renew the visa. Will this be ok? if not, what should i do. I want to file a labor petition so that i can work full time on this new job. In that case, if you are going for a visa extension (after LCA expires), I am pretty sure it is not a great idea to go back to US as the chances are that you will not get a green card and have to wait a lot to get it. If you do not want to change employers, it will be hard for you to hold your present job and work on an H-1B. What you are going to do is highly unlikely to get you an LCA extension.

1. Technical Field The present invention relates to the field of fluid handling devices, and in particular to a servo-controlled pump and metering valve assembly for pressurized fluid supplies in a dental syringe.

2. Description of Related Art There is a need for controlled volume delivery of fluid to a patient in a dental setting. In a dental setting, a variety of different fluids are used in a process of administering and delivering medication to a patient. Dentists, for example, utilize syringes to administer and deliver various dental materials to patients. The materials can include, for example, anesthetic liquids, gels, anesthetic irrigation fluids, medicaments, and the like. Such materials are often delivered in a pressurized or liquid state to the patient, and once delivered to the patient they are frequently absorbed by the patient immediately. When delivering pressurized fluids, a dentist may utilize a syringe to dispense a prescribed volume of liquid or material. The prescribed volume can be defined in a predetermined number of units, such as milliliters (ml)
