On your local computer, go to Windows My Network Places. Locate the server where it is located. GV-System. 2. To download LAN ViewLog, locate the file LANViewLogCtrl.exe ... 3. Run it. 4. Start the GV-System server. 5. Check how it works. In this section, I will cover ways to access system resources that are often used for multimedia work. You will find this knowledge useful if you want to use it to access Windows Vista resources. First off, make sure that the computer is running the Windows Vista operating system. This can be done by running the command: md C:\Windows\System32\config.
