Category:Chemical engineering Concise Inorganic Chemistry: JD Lee, (chinese edition), S. Sudarshan GuhaQ: passing a random generated number in SQLite to a function I am trying to call a function that will display a random generated number to a TextView, however I am only being able to pass the same number of each time to the same view. I am using SQLite, Android Studio and Kotlin. here is the function that gets called when the button is clicked: fun displayRandom(tv: TextView){ val db: DatabaseHelper = openOrCreateDatabase("SqlServer", Context.MODE_PRIVATE, null) val random = Random() val r: String r = db.generateRandomString(5).toString() tv.text = r db.close() } A: You don't have a database connection at this stage in the process. Simply calling db.close() won't work until a connection is established first. That could be a simple fix, or there could be other issues too. You can simply establish the connection inside the function: fun displayRandom(tv: TextView) { val db
