In Avengers: Endgame, we see a snapshot of the past brought to the present by the presence of time-shifters. At first we see black smoke and gunfire, followed by a helicopter. We then see more black smoke and more helicopters later. The past is clearly shown, in this visualization. The last thing shown, the present, does not seem to include these moments, nor do the present and past not seem connected, as some time-shifters from the past were able to time-shift to the present, since the MCU initially showed a timeline where almost half the population were killed. We saw different types of time-shifters. Some were literally holding guns. We saw one older man at a hospital, with white hair, talking on a phone, and he was visible on the screen for a significant amount of time (less than a minute). We saw a young boy and a girl, both male, pass by in the background, who also stayed on screen for a long time. We saw a man call someone and wait for a phone call from his girlfriend, whom we could see in the background for a significant amount of time. We saw all of the above, albeit on a 82138339de
