The roasted cabbage adds a much-needed punch of freshness to the dish. Photography Credit: Sarah Betancourt There are so many ways to put cabbage on the table, from a fresh slaw to a slaw sandwich. So that's where my patience usually lies: waiting to dress up a cabbage recipe that doesn't have enough zip and flavor. I know, boring! I may have used the word "boring", but I'm hardly that boring, and no, this doesn't have to be a boring recipe—it's not. But, it does need some color and some interest, not just the standard red cabbage, crunchy salad mix, and coleslaw-in-a-bowl recipes. To make it work, I used a less popular variety of cabbage: a raw green cabbage. This cabbage is a little bitter and slightly rubbery. It takes a little getting used to, but after a few tries, you'll like it. This recipe relies on the color and crunch of the cabbage to be the main player in the dish. The color in the dish comes from the bright red and golden-brown of the caramelized cabbage. The crunch comes from the the lightly toasted caraway seeds and the buttery-sweet roasted pumpkin seeds. I suppose you could say this is sort of a fusion of two wonderful things! You'll be surprised when you first taste it, but it's definitely a good thing. It's the whole-food kind of mid-summer recipe. 21/24 What is a fusion of two wonderful things? What is a fusion of two wonderful things? A fusion is a combination of two or more foods or ingredients that aren't the same. If you're talking in general, you can use a fusion of two flavors. 3e33713323
