Cimatron Description Cimatron software enables you to create a design with features of your choosing, and then convert that design into a CAD drawing for use with multiple CAD software packages or CNC controllers. Cimatron offers simple, user-friendly software that suits the needs of the basic home user to the advanced user, offering a single user interface for all of your workflow, from quoting to design, to manufacturing. You have the ability to send documents to your customers using a variety of document types including Microsoft Word, and attach files at the time of emailing. You can send automatic messages when your customer approves your design, or if your customer modifies your design. By uploading your design, you are able to have your customers directly access your designs. You can place a schedule of customer viewing times for your designs, monitor the schedule, and then view the times that your customers are making a request. One of the great things about Cimatron is that it doesn't matter which CAD program you're currently using, Cimatron is able to work with it. This means that you can use your current CAD program and manage it, and then create a design with Cimatron, and it will automatically export that design to whatever CAD program you are using. In addition, you can export your CAD designs to STL files, or use custom indices to import your designs into your favorite CAM package. Airlines cancel flights due to unsafe cold weather (AP) - The airlines that fly into and out of Buffalo have canceled hundreds of flights because of unsafe temperatures, grounding nearly 1,000 passengers. All American, Delta, United and US Airways have cancelled flights to or from the Buffalo Niagara International Airport. Most of the cancellations are expected to be complete by mid-afternoon. The cancellations began about 9 a.m. when flights headed to the airport were being diverted to other airports. The airport's spokesman, Kevin Quinn, said he doesn't know what prompted the decisions, which happened before any precipitation was expected. Winter storm warnings, the highest in the state, are in effect for upstate New York from east of the Adirondacks to Lake Champlain and northern Pennsylvania. The National Weather Service says there is a risk of blizzard conditions from Lake Ontario to the Canadian border in the next few days. The storm was expected to hit late Friday evening, bringing snow and sleet, but it's now been replaced with more warnings as a wind chill advisory remains in effect until the weekend. Airlines are using stronger braking forces on some flights to slow them down because of the strong winds. Airlines are "very concerned about the winter storm and a few inches of snow expected," Quinn said. Most of the cancellations are likely to be completed by early afternoon, he said.
