#1: Powerful and easy to use interface for all Griffin AirClick keybaord users#2: Control any application that supports Multimedia Keyboards#3: Simulate keyboard keystroke#4: Shutdown PC when you're doneDirk Nowitzki and the Mavericks are staring at another stretch of season that includes eight of their last nine games on the road. They get their first look at the Toronto Raptors on Friday night at the Air Canada Centre. The Raptors have been building toward an aggressive push to the playoffs, and their success will have to do with a healthy Kyle Lowry and the development of long-range shooting. They've notched three victories in their last four contests, and Toronto just finished a 7-1 trip to the West Coast that included road wins against the defending champion Golden State Warriors and the then-leading Portland Trail Blazers. "All of our games are important, because the top of the division, it's not easy," Lowry said after the Raptors throttled the Kings on Thursday. "We're playing tough teams and we have to be ready for every game." The Mavericks haven't been finding ways to get there lately, and have already lost eight of their last 11 games. They have points in nine of their last 11 games, and look to find a way to slow down Miami Heat star Dwyane Wade and the rest of the Heat's squad. "We just need to have a better sense of urgency," Nowitzki said. "We have to be able to drive to the basket a little bit better. And we have to have guys on the other side to help us." The Mavericks believe they have the talent to turn it around. But the loss of veteran point guard J.J. Barea, who has played the majority of the minutes at that position, will hurt. Barea's absence has been felt, and the likes of Delon Wright, Devin Harris and Jae Crowder -- who have been playing at times -- can't be depended on to get the job done. Raptors center Jonas Valanciunas, who has been on the shelf with a knee injury for several weeks, should be available to play Friday night for the first time. A few days ago, Raptors coach Dwane Casey said the team hopes to have Valanciunas available to play at some point in the final six weeks of the regular season. "I think that is the same for all of us," Casey said.
