Experimental hyperaemia with prostacyclin in diabetic nephropathy. Diabetic nephropathy was induced in 10 non-diabetic and 13 streptozotocin-diabetic rats by injection of glycocorticoids. The mean weight of the diabetic rats was lower than that of the control animals. Glycaemic control was made progressively worse by injections of insulin and then by admission to the high-sugar diet. Prostacyclin (PGI₂) produced vasodilation in the renal vasculature of non-diabetic rats and increased the glomerular filtration rate in streptozotocin-diabetic animals. The results suggested that there was a role for PGI₂ in the haemodynamic response to diabetic nephropathy and that PGI₂ therapy could be potentially beneficial in the management of some forms of diabetic nephropathy.

Joel McHale on Favorite Competition: 'The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air' The 'Community' star loves the '90s ABC sitcom so much, he recently bought the rights to make a series based on the show. The Community star is about to make his TV comeback in a big way. Joel McHale is set to star opposite Charley Kean in the ABC comedy pilot, The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air. Based on the popular 1990s sitcom, the pilot tells the story of a widowed Miami Beach businessman who moves back to his childhood home of West Philadelphia and reinvents himself as a fresh new prince. Kean, who recently starred in House of Cards, plays the man's grandson,
