Title: How to fix it? Tagline: Spoiler I'm not being insensitive here. I'm not sure what to expect, and I'm not looking for someone to "prove" that we can. I'm just genuinely curious. In any event, here are the different empires. AUS Empire = Australia + New Zealand USA Empire = United States of America BRIT Empire = United Kingdom GER Empire = Germany + Italy FIN Empire = Finland I think the rules you listed may be incorrect. For example, australia's starting civilization will get some sort of cultural bonus, the US's will get some sort of technological bonus, and britain's will get some sort of political bonus. Also, Australia gets an "early start" to discovering space. Originally Posted by Fantom I never played the original Hearts of Iron but that's a really interesting concept. Also, Australia gets an "early start" to discovering space. As soon as you complete peace with Europe and Nordic Rivalries, the vast majority of those empires will get the exact same bonuses. The only exceptions are the S.A.A. and the SCons. It is however important to remember that those are your starting civilizations and they will be directly relevant to the remaining countries (GER, BRIT and FIN for instance). Just like its predecessor, Hearts of Iron IV is a grand World War II strategy game that offers a lot of options and allows you to play as one of over a dozen countries. You can play as any of the several existing countries or create your own nation from scratch. And thanks to cross-play, you can play online with everyone. Hearts of Iron 4 is also available now and it is a huge expansion that brings a lot of new features and is still in its pre-final beta phase with plenty of changes still to come. There are three missions available right now, but Paradox has plans to add at least 5 to 7 more. The great thing about HoI4 is that you can create your own version of a nation and use it in missions. This allows you to avoid some of the most common
