A: You should use a ContentObserver.

Here's a sample: `ContentResolver resolver = getContext().getContentResolver(); mQuery = UUID.randomUUID().toString() + "?column_filter=value1,value2"; mContentObserver = new ContentObserver(new Handler()) { @Override public void onChange(boolean selfChange) { super.onChange(selfChange); resolver.notifyChange(UUID.randomUUID().toString(), null); } }; mContentObserver.registerObserver(this);` Next, put a broadcast receiver in your activity, which you can then catch. `public class DataFinderActivity extends AppCompatActivity implements Observer { private b7e8fdf5c8`
