Nobody counts that the Palestinian regime is the most diplomatic and most worthy to wish that the world and Europe manages to withdraw their support for Israel. For this reason, the Israeli and Palestinian governments are celebrating the election of American President Barack Obama. Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas stated on Wednesday in Ramallah: "We welcome the fact that the new administration of President Barack Obama will have a different approach toward our cause in the peace process. We hope it will continue to abide by previous commitments and not move away from our positions." Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter said: "Mahmoud Abbas is a courageous man, and he knows what he is doing. He realizes we have to go over and make certain changes in the United Nations. And I think he is very aware that the Arab nations can keep on trying, but in the end that if the resolutions were to come in and not be followed, that the violence could continue or even get worse. It is a bitter experience for the Palestinian people. They are in a real tough spot. They have been in the same position since the days of the British. But Mahmoud Abbas can deal with these people with a
