Windows8.1.IIS.fixArt CAM.ArtCAM.exe-Autodesk® ArtCAM® 2017 Software (Mac® P30®/Windows P30®/Mac® Windows®) - Free® .Q: How to use std::map::find I am using map::find but it returns incorrect value for me. I am writing an iterator to use map::find. I am getting a 0 even if there are values in map. string s = "value"; map permissios; permissios[s] = 1; permissios.insert(pair(s, 1)); map::iterator ite = permissios.find(s); I am getting ite->second = 0. Please help me to fix it. Thank you A: You are creating a temporary map, and then after that you are searching for the value s in that map. Since the temporary map is destroyed after the compilation and before the program is running, the iterator is accessing values which don't exist anymore. You need to have the permissions be copied into the map iterator, but then the value will be copied as well, not the pointer (see copy constructors). You can use a lambda to define the method to copy, so you can use a shorter syntax.

std::map::iterator ite =
permissions.find(s)->second; Q: Find xml tag
