YouTube YouTube videos can be excellent resources for learning how to use Photoshop CS6. While you can find tips on using the tools in Photoshop in many videos, you have to search with keywords like _photoshop tutorials,_ and you may end up with thousands of videos to scroll through. For example, I recommend searching for videos about how to use the Smart Guides and Refine Edge options, both of which are covered in this chapter. I found several videos that taught me how to use these features. Check the YouTube video search results when you search for Photoshop. In many cases, they will link to video tutorials. *_MyVideo.com_ MyVideo.com has downloadable and video tutorials for Photoshop. You can get them for free from this site or purchase Photoshop tutorials for $25. Check this site out for how-to videos that have been uploaded by users. ## Applying and Adjusting Smart Guides One of the most important changes in Photoshop CS6 was the addition of what Adobe calls _Smart Guides_ (image manipulation on). Smart Guides are a nonintrusive way to create custom artwork guides that help you plan art direction. You can use these guides in a variety of ways, as shown in the two images in Figure 9-1, to quickly make creative decisions about the composition of an image before you start painting. FIGURE 9-1: Smart Guides are a powerful way to create guides for guiding you as you make changes to an image. In my experience, Smart Guides are a little tricky to master in that they don't appear automatically in the Custom Workspace like the other three types of guides discussed in this chapter. Instead, you have to choose Edit⇒Guides. (You may need to choose Window⇒Guides as well.) The next steps are new to CS6: You can use them to create guides that span multiple layers. If you create a new guide, it automatically links to the active layer that's directly above it. You can then use the guides to move or resize the layer. You can also move the guides themselves while editing. In addition to automatically moving and resizing a layer

] The primary focus of the district court was on the plain language of the Kentucky statute and whether the consumer has "reasonable grounds" for the belief that the mobile home has a storage defect. Since the court found that the consumer's belief was based on a reasonable inquiry into the defect, the court did not address the issue of whether the mobile home was "defective." [5] Appellant made the additional argument that the granting of summary judgment was in error because the evidence established that there was a genuine issue as to fact as to the B-2 classification. However, at the hearing on the motion for summary judgment, counsel for appellant stated that he was abandoning the B-2 classification and limited his argument to the "defect." While the B-2 classification was discussed at the hearing, counsel for appellant made no objection or other indication that he was attempting to preserve the issue for appeal, and thus it is waived for purposes of appeal. See Trebels v. KFL Food Sales, Inc., 904 S.W.2d 400, 403 (Ky. 1995). Moreover, the record contains no evidence as to the B-2 classification; therefore, any discussion of its applicability at this point would be pure speculation. Since there was no proof of the B-2 classification, the notice claim contained in the complaint fails to state a claim for which relief can be granted, and summary judgment was proper. KRS 355.904(4). [6] See also Rogers v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 563 N.E.2d 578, 579 (Ind.Ct.App.1990) (holding that where statute required that there be "reasonable grounds" for the belief that the product was defective, consumer must be "justified in his belief" that the product was defective in order for the notice to be sufficient). [7] In Count IV, Appellant's cause of action for breach of warranty, which was based on the warranty of merchantability, the damage element of the cause of action requires that the goods be "defective." See KRS 355.2-714(1). Q: Why does Z3 give contradictory answers for this simple proof? I'm trying to prove (from programming pthreads) that if P is true then Q is true. I figured I'd use Z3 to try to prove this by contradiction. Here is the code: (
