RoboDunk is a colorful action-platformer with an emphasis on flamboyant dunks and explosions. It's hard to put a finger on RoboDunk's genre, it's unlike any other game out there. It's simple, but still hard to master. It's a tactical, action-platformer with plenty of dunks, robot-racing, and the gameplay reminds you of all the best parts of Nba Jam and Rogue Legacy. Your bots can have up to 5 skills each, granting them effective offense and defense. You also equip upgrades which you purchase every match, giving a unique advantage to each bot. At the end of each match, each bot's intelligence and stats boost, unlocking new skills and even new robot breeds. Each match has a different set of rules, making every play experience unique. KEY FEATURES: - Indulge in the latest in action-platforming dunks: Sky-high gravity-defying dunks that'll leave opponents stunned and unable to defend. - Embark on a quest to rescue the 17 gods. - Equip powerful weapons and modify your bots with lightning-fast upgrades. - Explore an expansive 3D world, filled with secrets and hidden collectibles. - Play locally or fight it out with friends. - And of course there's the dunks!

WHY DUNK? "Dunk" is so hard that no other verb describes what's so satisfying about playing it, and I think you'll agree. Tons of dunks in RoboDunk come from gravity-defying jumping. Like a perfectly controlled slam dunk, and if you somehow happen to land perfectly on the hoop, you'll cause an explosion. The most satisfying dunks come from a proper follow-up dunk, whether the catch or shot is perfect or not. You can even catch the ball perfectly and dunk it into the goal as well. When you're shooting the ball over the goal to dunk it, the ball might ricochet off the arena's walls. If you can catch it in that momentum, you'll dunk it again. The game encourages you to do it again. Super satisfying dunks are caused by double-bouncers, when two bots bounce off each other's dunks to make a double collision,

: BHAGYA, SHANTI GANG KI WAAL || History An interesting fact about India is that it has never had a self proclaimed leader. Independence was big news in 1947, but these headlines have recently subsided. Even most of the commercial actors do not use the words Indian or India in their names. They are proud to be from Bengal, Mumbai, Punjab or Gujarat. Not like the English chieftain with an army of fancy titles and comprehensive powers. They had to create their empire by force, and some retired after conquering others. But if they had taken the entire globe into their hoar they would have fought a number of wars - if they had grown soft with comforts. The established viceroys may not have had titles, but they ended up in plenty of troubles. The establishment, therefore, fixed the head of the system in a certain way, with the help of their resourceful chieftains and British mercenaries. The system, in fact, looks like a pyramid. At the top, is the King, who is supposed to be both social and spiritual leader of the people. Of course, he does not compete with them. He is on the seventh floor. On the second floor there is a Chief Minister. He is not really the leader, but he has fixed the direction of the big ship. He is supposed to protect the system, and this he does with the help of ministers at his disposal. Below the chief minister is the president. He is supposed to be the military commander-in-chief. It is up to him to keep the heads of the states in line with the policy of the center. Of course, he is more or less a career bureaucrat, and he will not have the benefit of the guffaws of his fellow-officers and juniors if he is mistaken in his estimate of the situation. He, therefore, is not his own master. Not in the sense of being free, to decide on the basis of his own logic. He will have to get orders from the top - have an understanding with them and go. The Army and the Navy are led by the Army General and the Navy Admiral. For their support, they are supposed to have plenty of private armies of their own. The Ambassadors, the High Commissioners, and the civil servants, on the ground, are privately assisted by these institutions. The Public Works Department is led by Ministers of Public Works. Apart from building projects

War for the Empire A new war scenario, where Eastern and Western powers clash for control of a young Germany. I don't have the heart to tell him I sold the wolf to pay for a new motherboard. He'd throw a wobbler. I don't know if the PC was upgraded with a whole new motherboard but the box to which the PC was attached hasn't a scratch on it. My old components now live inside a coffee mug. On a whim I lent the box to a friend and along with his apartment he lost all of his PC's components in an apartment fire. I'll be able to buy a new box when I know I can get 2 HDDs from the fire. Well, 'tis the season to be jolly, but jolly smelly & a bit humpy. I'm off to visit an old pal of mine who's since retired, he lives in a rural village and it is a hive of activity where the locals have rebuilt (or refurbished) most of the old WW-II buildings. However, it hasn't helped too much. The village has a population of about 150 and is very spread out. While the air was festively fragrant last night it is very wet. Several days ago the
