I am storing my user info to firebase auth, how can I get it from Cloud Functions(node.js)? The format is: { "uid": "user1", "email": "email1@email.com", "displayName": "User 1" } So I can get the email and displayName using admin SDK.

const functions = require('firebase-functions'); const admin = require('firebase-admin'); admin.initializeApp(functions.config().firebase); // const

---

userDocRef = admin.database().ref('/users/' + firebase.auth().currentUser.uid + '/documents'); const docRef = userDocRef.val(); console.log('docRef', docRef);

But how to get uid and displayName? And how to get the uid and email without saving the user info to firebase, like with the node.js way? A: This is all possible through the Firebase Admin SDK. Here's an example using the Admin SDK instead

It can also be very challenging. Photo by Willem Visser / Getty When I first started traveling solo, I was full of glee. I'd landed at a destination, found a place to stay, made friends and even learned a new language. I was spoiling myself – binging on food that I had never eaten before, drinking a few too many shots – and sleeping like the dead. In retrospect, my glory days spent traveling on my own weren't that great. So why was I so happy all of a sudden? Because I was free. Travel on my own was a chance to be on my own and catch up on several years' worth of life waiting for me back at home. I was lazy; I just wanted to lay my head on a pillow and feel like I was in my element. Plus, I was having fun. But when I stopped traveling, I realized how much my life had changed. And my adventures changed, too. I quickly learned that I was capable of adapting to new situations, languages and local customs. And I saw that you can have a fantastic time even when traveling solo and without a companion. This article is a round-up of lessons I've learned on my travels that I hope are useful to you, whether you travel solo, or with a buddy or family.

1. Travel with your eyes wide open One of the things I've learned traveling on my own has been to have my eyes open when it comes to socializing and negotiating. When I'd first travel on my own, I had no understanding of how different people and culture was. I'd always seen myself as open-minded, but I failed to realize that other people don't see it the same way. It's been two years since I last traveled solo and I've been back to
