Motor vehicles, particularly for the transportation of goods, are known as being equipped with a liftgate. The liftgate is arranged at the rear of the vehicle and is movable between an open position and a closed position. When the liftgate is moved from the closed position to the open position, it is lifted by means of a hinge mechanism. These liftgates include a spoiler arranged at the rear of the vehicle. The spoiler is mounted for rotation about an axis and is connected to the liftgate via a coupling mechanism. When the liftgate is closed, the spoiler is arranged at least partially behind the liftgate. When the liftgate is opened, the spoiler rotates about the axis into an area defined by the front of the liftgate.Q: Trying to access a field with a ListEntityIterator I am using the following for-each loop: for (Entity entity : getEntities()) { // do something with entity } The getEntities() method returns a List of my entity types. I have a field in my entity that looks like this: private List someField; I want to populate that field with the same list that is returned from the getEntities() method. But I have tried doing entity.get someField() and I get a cast exception. Is it possible to populate a field with the same list that is returned by the getEntities() method? A: Having a list of objects as a field is something that looks very much like an antipattern. It will be easier to populate it if you're able to do it in a constructor that takes a collection. A very common case for this is when you are loading a collection at runtime your collection is read from the database and there is no reason to have it as an in 0cc13bf012
