(zip file)Out Now: Churmonster meets Mayfest Crowdfunding site indiego has helped create the official support vehicle for Melbourne's Churmonster music festival. Churmonster will be back in the city this month for Mayfest, a three-day carnival of bands, art and education. The event features solo artists, bands, art, authors, educators and more, and this year's roster of Australian cultural notables includes Christian McBride, Ed Sheeran and Luke Moran. But the city's music fans are being asked to donate to a campaign to help cover costs for the event. Churmonster's organisers, who include the biennial short-film festival Hot Docs, have set up a crowdfunding page on the indiego website. The funds raised will be used to help cover costs such as security, artists' fees, printing of T-shirts and tickets and personal expenses for the festival headliners. Band Churmonster (pictured) will return to the shores of Melbourne for Mayfest at Prahran's Ikon Gallery. The company says that's so even lesser-known acts can join the gigs on May 8-10, while some of Melbourne's most venerable music venues will be asked to host concerts at a later date. Churmonster has grown steadily over the years, and the festival is scheduled to begin on May 8. In past years acts to perform included Starfury, Fred Durst, Skape!, The Drones, the Black Heart Procession and the Barmacles. Held in the City's inner-north, the festival is the brainchild of The Wharfie. The Wharfie is the side-project of Churmonster festival organisers Nathan Hudson and Anthony Kong. Churmonster has since become a full-blown festival and a not-for-profit organisation. The pair has held the event every two years since 2007, but the festival has grown to also be a platform for arts and educational events. This year there will be a morning with DJ Guru Josh Ritter, music and art from the Little Creatures crew, Bath St Creative workshops and
